DIPLOMATE American College of Veterinary Internal Medicine (Oncology)

Jessica Ottnod, DVM was born and raised in Rochester, New York and achieved her Bachelor of Science degree in Microbiology with a minor in Psychology from the University of Rochester in 2003. To pursue her dream of becoming a veterinarian, she moved to Columbus, Ohio and graduated from The Ohio State University College of Veterinary Medicine in 2007. Following graduation from veterinary school, she traveled to Livonia, Michigan and worked in general small animal medicine at Village Animal Clinic in Farmington, Michigan for 3 years. In 2010, her interest of oncology brought her to the Animal Cancer and Imaging Center where she completed a formal oncology internship followed by an oncology residency. Her research projects included researching the use of a new tyrosine kinase inhibitor drug for treatment of lymphoma and examining the efficacy of the Oncept melanoma vaccine. After completing her oncology residency in 2013, she began locum work as a medical oncologist at Michigan State University. Dr. Ottnod is board certified in oncology by the American College of Veterinary Internal Medicine.
